Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

FROM a Detroit radio station a Catholic priest, the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, has been preaching these many months upon the political and economic issues that are disturbing America. He attacks politicians of both parties. He attacks private business leaders. He talks at times of leading a political revolt in these United States. I note that he is upheld this week-end by his immediate superior in the Catholic church, the Right Reverend Michael G. Gallagher, bishop of Detroit.

Right Reverend Gallagher, of Detroit, Joins Coughlin in Broadcast

HE BREAKS SILENCE

Is First Statement From Priest's Immediate Superior in Church

DETROIT, Mich.—(AP)—The Rt. Rev. Michael G. Gallagher, bishop of Detroit, threw the full authority of his Episcopal jurisdiction Sunday behind the radio addresses of the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, organizer of the National Union for Social Justice.

Bishop Gallagher spoke on Father Coughlin's regular Sunday afternoon broadcast, last of his regular winter program.

"I pronounce 'other Coughlin sound in doctrine, able in its application and interpretation,' the bishop said. 'I give him my imprimatur on his written word and freely I give my approval on the spoken word. May both be circulated without objection throughout the land.'

"Under my jurisdiction he preaches the just codes of the old law and its commandments. He teaches Christ and the fathers and the doctors of the church. He preaches the evangelists and applies them as he has been ordered to do.

"Until a lawful superior rules otherwise, I stand steadfast behind this priest, Father Coughlin, encouraging him to do the will of God as he sees it and I see it."

"Historic Address"

Bishop Gallagher's address, which Father Coughlin afterward described as "one of the most historic addresses ever made in this nation," broke the silence which has surrounded the Detroit Episcopacy during Father Coughlin's sensational encounters with both William Cardinal O'Connell of Boston and Gen. Hugh Johnson, former N. I. chief, on the position of a Catholic priest in discussing national affairs.

The bishop supported Father Coughlin's right to preach, and his own right to "order" him to do so, by many quotations from the papal encyclicals of Pope Leo XIII and Pope Pius XI.

While the prelate said that the imprimatur which he placed on Father Coughlin's works did not mean "the bishop agrees with everything to which he has given permission to print or preach," he gave active support to Father Coughlin's campaign against "the concentration of wealth and the control of money and credit in the hands of a few."

Majority Senate Committee Favors Extension of NRA

But 3 of Democrats Are Flatly Opposed to Recovery Act

ASK MODIFICATION

Majority Favors Amendments—Bonus Issue Reaches Senate

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—A survey Monday indicated that a sizable majority of the senate finance committee approve an extension of the NRA—although with various changes.

Three Democratic members of the committee expressed flat opposition to prolongation of the recovery act which expires June 16 unless congress does something about it.

Most of the remaining committee members voiced acceptance of NRA principles, at least in part, but stipulated that changes should be made in the interest of improved execution of principles.

No Bonus Agreement

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Cash bonus leaders offered no compromise Monday in hearings before the senate finance committee on how and when to pay the war veterans.

Spokesmen for the various veterans' factions testified for their own projects, ignoring the measure introduced by Chairman Harrison in an effort to reach a compromise satisfactory to the administration.

Representative Patman, Texas Democrat, urged approval of his bill, which was passed by the house recently providing for full cash payment of the bonus in new money.

Eccles to Be Confirmed

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The Glass banking subcommittee voted Monday to make a favorable report on the nomination of Marriner S. Eccles of Utah as governor of the Federal Reserve Board without further inquiry into his qualifications.

The vote followed a proposal by Senator Couzens, Michigan Republican, to investigate unpublished complaints against Eccles.

To Choose Works Board

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Roosevelt this week will name his organization for putting into effect the gigantic $4-billion-dollar works program.

He is relying for the most part on the existing governmental agencies.

Planned Economy

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—President approval was claimed Sunday for a new move toward a "planned economy" in which money and credit could be deflected from industries already producing surpluses and used instead to develop fields where demand exceeds domestic supply.

It was disclosed that the house banking committee had inserted in the omnibus banking bill, which has caused such a stir in political and financial circles, this language:

"It shall be the duty of the Federal Reserve Board to exercise such powers as it possesses in such manner as to promote conditions conducive to business stability and to mitigate by its influence unbalancing fluctuations in the general level of production, trade, prices, and employment, so far as may be possible within the scope of monetary action and credit administration."

Marriner S. Eccles, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, suggested the committee put these words in the bill. And usually well-informed committee members, who asked that their names not be used, said Eccles had a presidential endorsement of that amendment.

One of them said: "The president wants us to pass this bill, if we have in it that stabilization instruction."

Several reasons, committeemen said, influenced the president's decision to approve that new language in the banking bill. One was the insistence by big businessmen and financiers upon dollar stabilization. It was so that while the instruction to the Federal Reserve Board might have little effect internationally, it would, at least, tend to stabilize domestically everything that business wants stabilized.

Another more practical political reason was given. There was a strong drive in the house banking committee to create a federal monetary authority with sole control over currency issuance. Presidential financial advisers objected to that, so it was dropped.

Then it was suggested that the Reserve Board be instructed to stabilize prices at the 1926-1929 average level. An amendment to that effect, it was disclosed, was voted down by the committee by more than two to one, but only after the less specific instruction was accepted.

It was recalled the president frequently has expressed his opposition to the idea of loans for expanding operations in already overworked fields. The Reconstruction Corporation is, at his suggestion, using its influence in effecting this policy.

Nevada County Boy Is Killed by Auto

Monroe Cox, 19, Struck by Car Driven by Jess Thomas, Prescott

PRESCOTT, Ark.—Monroe Cox, 19, son of Larkin Cox, farmer near Prescott, was struck by an automobile driven by Jess Thomas of Prescott on Highway 67, four miles south of Prescott early Sunday and died in a hospital here.

Deputy Sheriff Earl May and Horace Ward and City Marshal Curtis Ward who investigated said that Cox was attending a dance and night sneer the highway and when trouble arose, he ran out onto the highway during heavy rain and into the path of Thomas' car.

Thomas reported the accident to officers on his arrival here. No arrest was made.

74 Die in Holiday Highway Mishaps

It Was Tragic Week-end for American Automobile Traffic

By the Associated Press

The nation Monday counted 71 dead and more than 200 injured in highway traffic accidents over the Easter holiday.

Maryland's toll of 10 was raised by the deaths of six young persons when their speeding automobile hit a parked truck near Powersville.

A 50-year-old farmer was killed as he walked on the road near the scene of that tragedy and the driver of the death auto was injured slightly when his automobile overturned twice as he tried to avert.

Earthquake Toll on Jap Island of Formosa Is 3,000

Many Thousands of Injured as Result of Tremblor in Pacific Sunday

FORMERLY CHINESE

Owned by Japs, But Japanese Population Is Relatively Small

TOKYO, Japan.—(AP)—Governor General Nakagawa, of Formosa, in a radio-telephone interview late Monday said the deaths from Sunday's earthquake probably would reach 3,000.

He feared the casualty numbers would be increased materially when figures are obtained from the interior regions inhabited by aborigines.

Island of Formosa

The island of Formosa, swept by a terrible earthquake Sunday, lies 15 miles off the coast of China. Ceded to Japan by the Chinese in 1895, Formosa is 235 miles long, 90 miles wide, and has a population of 4 1/2 millions, most of whom are Chinese, there being but 212,000 Japs.

Worst in Modern Times

TAIPEI, Formosa.—(AP)—Nearly 3,000 persons were killed and 11,000 injured Sunday in the Japanese-occupied island of Formosa's most destructive earthquake of modern times.

Rocking the island at dawn Sunday, the shocks spread death, destruction and terror in scores of populous villages on the borders of Taichu and Shiehshiku provinces. The latest official tabulation was 2,71 killed, 11,286 injured, while an estimated 250,000 were homeless.

A majority of the victims were caught in collapsing houses, which were mostly of sun-dried brick rubble. Chinese fashion. Police reported 16,493 houses demolished and approximately 20,000 damaged.

Telephone and telegraph communications were cut off from many of the inland districts of mountainous Formosa, making it impossible to gather full details. The tragedy was the worst in Japanese territory since the 1923 earthquake which devastated Tokio and Yokohama with a loss of almost 100,000 lives.

The entire main street in Taichu city was demolished, and the city of Taichu, formerly was destroyed. Throughout the northwest portion of the island railroad tracks buckled into fantastic waves like writhing snakes, and many elaborate mountain tunnels caved in.

Troops Rushed In

Although the entire island was shaken, the biggest toll was confined to an area 40 miles in diameter north of Taichu, especially in the Yokohama district, 15 miles north of Taichu.

Among the worst stricken towns were Naito where 581 died, including the "head-man" (corresponding to mayor); Kamaika, with 445 killed; Taiko, where fires added to the destruction; Byoritsu, which saw a majority of its houses leveled; Kori, Chikunan and Taikuo.

The seismological observatory announced the center of the shock was near Toyohara, 10 kilometers (nearly seven miles) below the surface. This shallowness, unusual in earthquakes, accounted for the heavy damage to buildings.

Formosa's last disastrous earthquake.

Federal Interest Charge Again Cut

First Liberty Issue, 3 1/2 to 4 1/4, Refunded at 2 7/8 and 1 5/8

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—In a new move to reduce carrying costs of the public debt, Secretary Morgenthau Sunday offered holders of first Liberty Loan bonds an opportunity to exchange them for new—but lower-interest—federal securities.

Outstanding first Liberties, aggregating $1,933,000,000, already had been called for redemption June 15. Sunday's refunding offer consisted of 2 7/8 per cent 20-25 year bonds and 1 5/8 per cent Treasury notes. Neither issue could be bought for cash but were obtainable only upon presentation of a first Liberty bond.

The Liberties have been paying their owners from 3 1/2 to 4 1/4 per cent and costing the government $71,000,000 annually. The maximum interest that could be paid on the exchange was $55,000,000, and that amount only if the entire conversion were made in bonds.

Refunding of callable federal bonds at lower interest rates has been a consistent Treasury policy for months. In a recent speech Morgenthau estimated that upon completion of war loan refunding next fall, the Treasury would have cut annual interest charges $100,000,000.

Tells Senate "a Gang of Brigands" Is Being Sent Into His State to Spend Federal Millions

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Senator Long returned to the senate Monday and charged the Roosevelt administration had "called in a gang of brigands" and given them authority to spend millions of dollars in his state.

Speaking before noisy galleries Long centered his attack upon Secretary Ickes and Relief Administration Hopkins.

President Roosevelt also came in for attack when Long said that "with the president lies the demand that corruption and political prostitution of the lowest order shall be re-inflicted on my state."

Drop Tax Charge on Local Citizen

Joe Kejr Cleared of State Charges on 700 Gallons of Gas

Charges of evasion of the state gasoline tax were dismissed against Joe Kejr when the case was called in Hope municipal court Monday.

Revenue agents stopped him when he crossed the Fulton toll bridge Friday morning on route home with about 700 gallons of Texas fuel on which no tax had been paid.

Evidence pointed toward the fact that Kejr had no intention of violating the law. He purchased the fuel to burn in his farm tractor, he said.

Kejr is a farmer. He resides on the Hope-Washington road.

The case against him was dismissed on motion of Deputy Prosecuting Attorney P. T. tags on payment of the tax and court costs.

Millard Alford, former prosecuting attorney of the Eighth Judicial circuit, appeared in court as an attorney for the state revenue department.

A charge of refusal to vacate property was dismissed against Lum Ratliff in the only other state case heard Monday.

Julius Suttle, charged with assault and battery, was fined $2.50. He was charged with striking and beating Trenton Cooper.

A charge of reckless driving against Ed Brown was dismissed on motion of City Attorney W. S. Atkins.

Fairy Easter, charged with assault and battery, was fined $25 and costs. The defendant was arraigned for beating and striking Viola McFadden.

French "Expose" German-Pole Pact

Berlin Ridicules "Old Story"—Says Poland Has Denounced Germany

By the Associated Press

High French authorities said Monday that France did not care to enter into direct negotiations with Hitler over the European situation, holding such parleys might interfere with the united front of Great Britain, France and Italy.

In Berlin a well-defined campaign was seen to increase German animosity to forestall a "hazardous attack" against the nation.

Polish-German Pact?

PARIS, France.—(AP)—A French news paper reported Sunday the alleged existence of a secret military alliance between Germany and Poland (denied in Berlin) as Soviet Russia's attempt to negotiate a pact with France developed into "indefinite postponement."

The newspaper said Publ of Lyons, published what it said was the text of a secret treaty signed in Germany and Poland February 25, 1934, under which both governments "agreed to pool their military, economic and financial resources," to support each other.

"The Polish government," said the Lyons newspaper, "will have to explain it."

(The German Foreign Office in Berlin flatly denied the story with the comment that it had been "exploited so many times that we ought not to have to deny it again.") Official comment was not obtainable in Warsaw, but informed circles said Foreign Minister Joseph Beck's vote at Geneva with the rest of the powers in condemnation of German rearmament "didn't look as if the two countries were completely dovetailing their policies."

French officialdom was pictured Sunday night at awaiting, without much enthusiasm, an expected offer of negotiations from Reichsfuehrer Hitler following what was called his "independent" protest against Germany's condemnation by the League of Nations Council.

The German note of protest, issued Saturday, "gives Hitler time to consider," it was said in authoritative matters, indicating a belief that Germany's virtual isolation at Geneva was causing Hitler to "think."

Some, however, considered the note a proclamation of Germany's "honor," which would be satisfied with nothing short of abolition of the treaty of Versailles.

Widow's Appeal for Damages Is Rejected Monday

Litigation an Outgrowth of 4-Man Tragedy Last Year Near St. Louis

JUDGE IS UPHELD

County Can Not Be Mandamus to Appoint School Examiner

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—The Arkansas Supreme Court held Monday that a suit for damages in an airplane fatality did not state proper cause of action in that no negligence was alleged.

The suit was the outgrowth of a plane crash near St. Louis last year in which W. N. Gregory, Sr., Augusta, (Ark.) planter, Gregory's son, Glen Herndon and G. W. Martin, were killed.

Herndon's widow filed suit alleging the younger Gregory was an unskilled pilot.

Mrs. Frances Sparks won the right to become a preferred creditor of Gateway Women's college at Searcy, on the ground that the college trustees converted the funds of a contingent endowment gift into cash to construct the college heating plant.

The supreme court held that a county judge can not be mandamus to appoint a county school examiner. The court held that it was discretionary with the judge as to appointment.

Five Million for Railroad Repairs

Missouri Pacific and Frisco to Spend Much of It in Arkansas

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—(AP)—Encouraged by prospects of increased passenger and freight traffic, three southwestern railroads, with headquarters here, Sunday listed 1935 budget allotments totaling $5,265,896 for repair and reconstruction projects.

The building program is expected to stimulate still mill activity and provide employment for several thousand additional workers. The Missouri Pacific, St. Louis-San Francisco (Frisco) and Missouri-Kansas-Texas (Katy) railroads are concerned.

Officers of the Frisco announced $3,688,766 would be expended in improvement projects modernizing its lines.

The sum includes $738,766 for laying 75 miles of new rail in Missouri, Oklahoma and Arkansas; $200,000 for construction of 75 miles of block signal and interlocker between Yale, Tenn., and New Albany, Miss.; $750,000 to rebuild 750 wooden boxcars into steel cars, and $2,000,000 for treated timber and ties.

Purchase of more than $1,000,000 worth of steel products for track improvement is included in the Missouri Pacific's $1,335,130 rehabilitation program.

New rails will cost $325,000, and $800,000 will go for tie plates, rail anchors and track fastenings. The rail-laying will be spread over the summer work season. Company officials said the project would take six months to complete.

The road also is spending $15,000 to replace with steel and concrete the present pole trestle approach to the railroad's bridge over the White river at Benzal, Ark. Other Missouri Pacific repair allotments are $28,100 for a new steel mechanical coaling station at Lexa, Ark., $11,800 for a connection track at Aethinson, Kan., and $20,230 for bridge reconstruction at Athol, Mo.

Job Hunters Anger Governor Futrell

He Resents Scramble for Dead Man's Shoes Before Corpse Is Cold

LITTLE ROCK.—Unusually haste of applicants to fill a dead man's shoes, when his death leaves an official vacancy, provoked an indignant outburst of protest and a warning from Governor Futrell Sunday.

The governor wrathfully told the press: "I want to say this: 'Any person with the bad taste to apply to me for a vacancy in a public office before the former official is buried, or his body cold, will not be considered.'

"Any one who telephones me for such a purpose, or sends a telegram, or an emissary, or even hints that he wants a dead man's job, before a decent interval, will not be listened to, and will automatically be rejected for future consideration."

"It is a shameful business and disgraceful taste, this mad scramble for vacancies in offices caused by death, and I do not intend to tolerate it any longer. That's all I have to say."

The governor did not particularize, but his vigorous protest evidently was caused by applications received Sunday for appointment to the vacancy caused by the death Saturday of A. G. Williams, circuit clerk of Union county.

The vacancy in Union county was the latest of several that have occurred recently, and in each instance Governor Futrell has been besieged by persons, using all forms of personal and political pressure, with ambitions to fill the dead man's shoes.

Diet Offers No Clue in Rheumatism Cure

For many years it has been believed that rheumatism inflammations may be associated with errors in diet.

Recently, in one of the largest hospitals in Boston, two doctors made a study of the diets of 75 people having chronic inflammations of the joints.

Some of these cases were found to be definitely due to infections, such as gonorrheal infections and tuberculous infections. The remainder were carefully studied as to the influence on their conditions of changes in the diet, and they were compared with 20 people who did not have rheumatism.

The diets were studied particularly in relationship of the amount of carbohydrates that were taken and also with relationship to the vitamins.

One group of physicians argued that chronic rheumatic disease is usually associated with taking an excess amount of carbohydrates in relationship to proteins. It has also been argued that arthritis is associated with overeating and, finally, it has been claimed that it bears some relationship to the vitamin and mineral content of the food.

The Boston investigators were unable to find that a deficiency of vitamin D had anything to do with the chronic rheumatic inflammations. In fact, the lack of rheumatic conditions in cases in which all of the vitamins have been shown to be deficient might be used as an argument against the idea that a lack of vitamins has anything to do with chronic rheumatism.

Studies also were made to determine whether lack of calcium or other mineral salts was responsible, yet the studies indicated that the mineral content of the diet does not seem to have any part in the beginning of chronic arthritis.

Moreover, it was found that 58 per cent of the people with chronic rheumatic conditions had had an excess of calories in their diets for years, but at the same time 43 per cent of the people who did not have rheumatic conditions had an excess of calories in their diets.

As a result of all of these studies, the investigators were unable to find any direct relationship between dietary factors and the development of chronic rheumatic conditions. However, it should be realized that the patient with a chronic rheumatic condition requires all the force that his body can muster to overcome the disease, and that a diet based on sound scientific principles is an important factor in building up his general physical condition.

He Became a Victim of His Own Legend—Hindenburg Is Tragic Figure in Ludwig's Biography

The story of the late Paul von Hindenburg, says Emil Ludwig, is the tragedy of a man who becomes a legend before his death. Hindenburg became a legend before the World War was three months old, and the legend grew with the years; in the end he came to believe it himself, and was made helpless by it, and saw his life pass entirely out of his own control.

Ludwig tells about all this in his most recent biography, "Hindenburg." He sees the famous German soldier as the archetype of the Prussian Junker, the embodiment of the German military spirit, the man whose one life-star was unwavering devotion to duty, but who was utterly unable to decide just what his duty was when changing times knocked his familiar world out of its accustomed grooves.

were typical Junker decisions. Hindenburg's final years Ludwig finds extremely tragic. He was old, dotting, confused, lied to and imposed upon. The Nazis used him as a tool, and he dimly realized it—but there was nothing he could do about it. It makes an absorbing story. The publisher is the John C. Winston Co., and the price is $3.50.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Sweet Sixteen Is Bitter Age for Growing Boy

"Dear Mrs. Barton: I have a 16-year-old boy who worries me to death. He won't study and he gets perfectly furious if I tell him to do something. He just wants to lie around and go to the movies . . .

And so forth, and so forth. All the letters I got about 16-year-olds read about the same.

A mother recently asked if I would suggest taking her boy to a psychiatrist. The protagonist of the story is at the slump age. Snorts at everything, sleeps a lot, won't even change his shirt. And this distresses his mama beyond words because she adds, "I had thought this was the fixy age. Everyone told me that Hal would be a regular dude when he was 16."

"Well, he isn't. He is more careless than ever. I haven't much to spend but I do manage to get him clothes. He throws them on the floor and half the time he looks like a tramp."

They're self-conscious. For the minute I am going to be kind. I am sorry for the Hays who are such misfits in the general scheme of things. No longer children, they are still far from adult. Too old for childish play, they are too young, or so the other young bloods think, to count seriously in sports and other activities. They are doing their fastest growing, too, and feel awkward and self-conscious.

Right now they are more sensitive than at any time of their lives. They have the feeling they are no good, and the world is against them, or laughing at them. Some of them believe that if they dress up they will be teased because there must be a Martha Smith somewhere about.

While I am still feeling healthily sorry for these young chaps, let me suggest that two things help. One is to get the boy interested in something he can get his teeth into, and back him up if possible in whatever hobby he has. The other is to try and find some young man of 20 or so who likes the poor kid and is willing to do a little sacrificing of his own time.

The influence of a fine friend will work wonders when all the rest of the world fails. This idea is used by camps everywhere, and the Boy Scouts. A boy's father should be his best ally at this age. But fathers often have too little patience, or are too busy or too indifferent.

Don't Coddle Them But these growing lads, so out of step with the world, often enjoy being just what they are. They carry it too far. They love to be considered loud. They love being teased into line. They work the bells-act overtime. They use their tempers to blackmail favors. They take pride in scolding cleanliness and neatness. They decide school is unworthy of their tired efforts. They eat like horses (right) and sleep around the clock (natural).

The parents with this problem, who have done all they could to make their son into a self-respecting nice boy, and still failed, can take away his privileges and make him useful. He might enjoy the lamb stew better if he has dug the garden or beaten the rug. Water that he does not lift too heavy loads, but otherwise work won't hurt him. Lots of it. Don't nag him. Stop trying looking on him as a baby. Stop trying to please him. He'll wake up to the truth. If not, then something back along the line of his whole training has gone wrong, and it's too bad.

Only through the complete renunciation of Christianity will the German people achieve the unity it needs and which would have saved it from the trying days of 1918.—Gen. Erich Ludendorff.

The Baya weaver-birds, of India, fasten fireflies into their nests, of wood or stone instead of ice; the former are more permanent winter quarters and are built to withstand severe temperatures.

With that anti-war-profits bill, Uncle Stain would have to decline should another power ask him if he wanted to make something out of it.

The DARK BLOND

By CARLETON KENDRICK
© 1935 NEA SERVICE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

MILICENT GRAYSON, secretary to GEORGE DRINGOLD, made her employer in his office dead. JARVIS HAPP, a stranger, offers to help her. He sends her to a beauty shop where she is transformed into a blond, then takes her home, introducing her as his secretary. She meets HARRY, son of NORMAN, his stepson, ROBERT (JOHN), wife, MRS. HARRY, VERA DICHENE. Mrs. HARRY's maid.

That night a note under her door informs Millicent, who comes to black watch her. Millicent sees the woman, takes to follow, but loses her. Millicent goes to the chauffeur, who tells her the chauffeur is dead from a bullet wound.

Next morning SERGEANT MAHONEY takes charge of the case.

Over the telephone Mrs. HARRY learns that her husband has been kidnapped. She is warned not to inform the police.

Millicent and Norman learn that the owner of the car Millicent saw the woman in, is driving is PHYLLIS FAULCONER. They go to her apartment, see about to find when the car comes. They see Bob enter and then leave. Millicent and Norman go into the apartment. Millicent opens a closet door and calls, "Norman—look!"

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXIV

NORMAN HAPP stepped forward into the closet and took from one of the hangers a black ermine coat with a high collar. It brought it out into the living room of the apartment, where he regarded it curiously.

"Do you think that's the one?" he asked.

"I'm practically certain of it. Norman, it's exactly the cut shape and style of the one I saw."

"Then this Phyllis Faulconer is the woman in the black ermine coat."

"Yes," she said slowly, "but who is Phyllis Faulconer?"

"Some astrological nut who has a great influence over Cynthia. Apparently Bob is working in on boots with her in order to get some thing he wants."

Millicent stared at the fur coat looking at it from various angles. "Yes," she said slowly, "this is the one. The woman who wore this coat is the one who took my purse in the tea room and left me the other one."

"And," Norman finished, "she must have gone to Dringold's office, unlocked the door and killed him. Let's give Sergeant Mahoney a ring and have him take her into custody."

"No," Millicent said. "I want to find out more about her before we make any rash accusations. After all, I didn't see her face clearly enough to identify her."

"But the man in the liquor store can identify her."

"First," she said, "let's make certain this was the woman who purchased the whisky."

"It's got to be," Norman exclaimed impatiently.

"I know just how you feel," she told him, "and there's not the slightest doubt in my mind but that it's the same woman. Just the same we've got to proceed cautiously and be certain of our ground before we call in the police."

"What are we going to do to be come certain?" Norman asked. "We can't do anything staying here and talking."

MILICENT thought for a moment, then moved back toward the closet. "One of the first things to do is to put this coat back where it was and get out of here without letting anyone knowing we picked the lock on the door and found this coat. Then we've got to make arrangements with the man who runs the liquor store to take a look at Phyllis Faulconer and identify her as being the one who bought the whisky."

"How's he going to do that?"

"There are lots of ways," she said. "If necessary he could come here to the apartment, knock on the door and pretend to be selling something."

"Suppose she's not here?"

"Then he can come back. Probably the girl's working somewhere during the daytime and she is only here at night."

Norman nodded slowly. "Yes," he said, "I guess you're right, although I'd like to get some real action and bring this thing to a head."

"You can't do that," she told him, "until we've got some real evidence. Let's try to get it."

She hung up the fur coat in the closet. Norman crossed to the door and stood with his hand on the knob.

"Wait a minute," she told him. "We've got to pull down the curtain just the way it was. A woman would notice little things like that."

She pulled down the shade and turned to join Norman at the door. Then she caught sight of the corner of a piece of paper lying on the top of the mahogany table. The paper was all but concealed by an embroidered throw which partially covered the varnished surface of the cheap table.

She pulled back the edge of the throw, disclosing a sheet of note paper on which had been scrawled a hasty message.

The note read:

"You've got to ditch the car. Sergeant Mahoney has the license number. He's got it twisted, but it won't be long until he gets the right number. I tried to get a chance to talk with you but they were watching me too closely and I don't want them to suspect you. So far, you're absolutely above suspicion."

"No one suspects anything unless it's the Murder Girl. I'm going to take care of her. What's more, I'm going to get that notebook—the one that contains Dringold's confession. That will clean up the last piece of evidence. You ditch the car. Leave the girl to me.—Bob."

"Good heavens!" Millicent exclaimed, "then he was mixed up in the Dringold murder. What a mess it all is!"

"He may not have been mixed up in the murder," Norman said slowly, "but he certainly has cut in on the deal so that he's going to capitalize on it. You can leave it to Bob to know which side of the bread has the butter. He's always looking out for himself."

"But the woman must have had some man with whom she was working," Millicent pointed out. "She would hardly have committed the murder by herself. She . . ."

Millicent ceased speaking abruptly as she realized the import of what she had said. There had, indeed, been some man in the building at the time of the murder, and that man had been none other than Jarvis C. Happ.

"What's the matter?" Norman asked, noticing her sudden silence.

"Nothing," she said.

"You're nervous," he told her. "You ought to get out of here. Let's go. We'll put this note back on the table so that . . ."

"Indeed we won't!" she interrupted. "We'll take this note with us. It's a valuable piece of evidence. Bob Caise will have a hard time explaining this to Sergeant Mahoney."

"But," he objected, "Bob Caise is going to get in touch with Phyllis Faulconer sooner or later. When he does, he'll ask her about the note. If it is missing and she knows nothing about it, he'll suspect . . ."

MILICENT crossed the room to the writing desk, opened it, took out a sheet of note paper and said to Norman, "Come that note. Forge Bob's handwriting as well as you can, but don't be too particular about doing it because, if the woman becomes suspicious and thinks the handwriting isn't Bob's, she'll give Bob a ring and ask him about it and he'll tell her that he wrote the note and left it there."

Norman's eyes sparkled. "Smart girl," he said, and reached for the piece of note paper.

He wrote rapidly, making a credible job of forging Bob's handwriting. When he had finished, he put the note back on the table and arranged the throw so that it concealed the paper.

Millicent gave a last glance about the apartment, nodded to Norman and said, "I think it's all in order. Let's go."

She folded the original note and slipped it into the purse she was carrying.

As they moved toward the door of the apartment Norman said thoughtfully, "Did you notice what Bob said in that note—that he was going to 'take care' of you?"

"Yes," she said. "What do you suppose he meant by it?"

His voice was throaty with emotion as he said, "He meant he was going to kill you. That's the only explanation. He's desperate and he's probably armed. He's the type who would stop at nothing—even . . ."

He stopped speaking abruptly, reached out and pressed a detaining hand on Millicent's arm.

There was the noise of someone moving about in the corridor. Slowly the knob of the door turned.

Norman pushed Millicent back of him, stood with his fists doubled. The knob was released. It sprang back into position. Knuckles started to pound on the panels of the door—two sharp raps, a pause, two sharp raps, a pause, two more raps, a pause and a single rap.

Millicent felt her heart in her throat. She wanted to cling to Norman for support, but she knew Norman needed to be unimpeded.

There was the sound of a key being fitted into the lock.

Shine Nails to Suit Contour of Fingers—Two Coats of Polish Are More Lasting

On the days when your self-assurance seems to be at a low ebb, a professional manicure, or even one that you give yourself right at home, is a perfect pick-me-up. The next time you feel an attack of spring fever coming on, get out all the necessary implements, sit down in a good light at a rather low table and make up your mind to stay there until each finger looks like an advertisement for a new nail polish.

First of all, remove old polish. Then, using a not-too-rough file, shape your nails according to the contours of your fingers. If you have long, tapering ones, oval-shaped nails probably will be best. If they are short and rather plump, leave the nails pointed and as long as possible.

Of course, if you do a good deal of housework or use a typewriter every day, regardless of the shape of your fingers, you simply can't wear your nails too long.

After the filing process, soak one hand in luke-warm water and soap-suds for a few minutes. Rub olive oil or a cream, made especially for this purpose, around the cuticle on each nail, and, using an orange stick, wrapped in cotton, remove dead skin and push the cuticle back until the little white half-moons show. Never cut cuticle.

Do the same on the other hand. When you have finished, scrub each finger with soap suds and a little brush, dry carefully and use a buffer for a few seconds. Polish is the next and last step.

Remember that two coats will stay on much longer than one. The first should be thin. Allow it to dry thoroughly before you apply the second and heavier coat. If any of the liquid spills over on the cuticle or runs down across the tip of a nail, remove it immediately.

Calm, clear skies and delightful sunshine combined Sunday to form a perfect setting for the religious and social activities of Easter Sunday. When the Easter dawned, the entire world, thanks to the marvel that is radio, worshipped in unison the joyous festival of the Resurrection. From the scene of the Nativity, from the Vatican, from the altars of almost every locality on the globe where Christianity reigns, the word was brought in many tongues to the shut-ins and those isolated from orthodox places of worship. The different churches of our city celebrated from early sunrise to the close of the evening with ship hours, with services of song and praise and special sermons by the different pastors. It seemed that nature had donned her most beautiful garments, and the thought uppermost in flower lovers is that Hope at this time is rivaling Little Rock in the title, "City of Roses." You will find one of the most beautiful rose gardens in town at the Godbold home on West Second street. Dozens of dozens of lovely red radiance roses, attaining a perfection of blossom and forming one of the most colorful spots in the city. Second Coming of Christ, Is Sermon

George Lewis Preaching Every Afternoon and Night

Following an Easter message Sunday morning, Miss Georgia Lewis preached Sunday night on "The Second Coming of Christ."

"318 times in the new testament the second coming of Christ is mentioned," she said. "Surely a teaching that held such prominence in the Bible and early church should be preached today. If we could convince people that Jesus is coming it would solve all our social problems, all our political problems."

There are two parts to his coming: The first, His coming in the clouds, when those ready shall rise to meet him, called the Rapture; the second part is called the Revelation and is when he comes back to this earth again to set up his kingdom.

"The Second Coming of the Lord is the hope of the church. In 2 Thes. 4:16-17 Paul says, 'For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and the trumpet of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air; and shall ever be with the Lord.' Those who are not ready when the Lord comes will be left here on this earth to go through the tribulation period. Everyone that hath this hope 'Purifieth himself even as He is pure.' This is your time of opportunity, your day of salvation and grace. Would you be ready to meet Him should he come tonight?"

There will be services at 2 p. m. and 7:45 p. m. throughout the week.
